Certification Key:
 * - Residency must be in specialty in which certification is sought
 NL - No Limit
 N/A - Certification Not Offered
 ¹ - Applicants for ABPS certification in Geriatric Medicine must have completed a residency with substantial and identifiable training in Geriatric Medicine. Applicants for ABPS certification in Hospital Medicine must have completed a residency in Internal Medicine, Family Practice or Emergency Medicine.
 ² - Applicants for ABMS certification in Geriatric Medicine must first be certified in Family Practice or Internal Medicine with ABMS.
 ³ - Applicants for AOABOS certification in Geriatric Medicine must first be certified in Family Practice or Internal Medicine with AOABOS.
Note: All three specialty boards require a passing grade on a written or computer-based exam. ABPS exams are developed by Diplomates, many of whom are dual-boarded; boarded by the ABPS and also boarded by, for example, the American Board of Internal Medicine (ABIM), the American Board of Osteopathic Family Physicians (ABOFP) and the American Board of Osteopathic Emergency Medicine (ABOEM), and various others. In addition, ABPS requires all unsuccessful candidates to wait for one (1) year and provide 50 hours of Category 1 CME in their specialty prior to board eligibility to sit for their fourth examination, ABMS and AOABOS does not have this as a requirement.

Recertification Key:
 * - CME hours must be earned within the three (3) years prior to applying for recertification.
 ^ - CME hours must be earned within the two (2) years prior to applying for recertification.
 ! - 120 CME hours over 3 years, and 50 of those 120 must in that specialty.
 NR - Recertification NOT required pts 100 points must be earned over a ten year period
 N/A - Certification Not Offered
 RAR - Recertification Always Required
 NLO - No Longer Offered
 ¹ - If certified prior to 2002, all ABPS physicians are required to recertify every 10 years. If certified after 2002, recertification is required every eight (8) years.
 ² - ABPS has never offered voluntary recertification; it has always been mandatory to remain certified.
Note: ABPS, ABMS, and AOABOS all require written recertification exams with the following exceptions: ABMS applicants for recertification in Obstetrics/Gynecology and Diagnostic Radiology may choose between a written and an oral exam. In addition, the ABMS recertification exam in Ophthalmology is a take-home, open-book exam.
